1. Does your institution receive the Proceedings of the Integrated Ocean Drilling

Comments
1	Picked up copies at Geological society of america meeting - Gap in coverage around 100 - would need to go and get to verify.	Nov 19, 2010 9:49 PM
2	we have 10 items in our holdings	Nov 19, 2010 11:51 PM
3	I hadn't know that we did, but I am relatively new to the geosciences field.	Dec 2, 2010 9:19 PM
4	The former director of HBOI receives it and sends it to the library.	Dec 6, 2010 5:30 PM

2. Is your institution a federal depository library?

Comments
1	we do have a large USGS collection	Nov 19, 2010 11:51 PM
2	A partial depository.	Dec 2, 2010 9:19 PM

3. To what extent are the IODP DVDs being used?

Comments
1	just guessing - too busy to check	Nov 19, 2010 11:51 PM
2	Couple times a year (maybe)	Dec 2, 2010 5:30 PM
3	They are often charged out by faculty or graduate students for years.	Dec 2, 2010 8:40 PM
4	I really don't know. Our 4 dvds (vols. 301-306) were evidently never checked out.	Dec 2, 2010 9:19 PM

4. If the IODP DVDs are being used, who is using them?

Other (please specify)
1	probably mostly faculty.researchers but I don't know	Nov 19, 2010 11:51 PM
2	do not track this information b/c of patron privacy	Dec 2, 2010 6:31 PM
3	unknown	Dec 2, 2010 7:03 PM
4	most likely faculty & researchers	Dec 2, 2010 9:19 PM

5. Have any of the IODP DVDs ever 'walked off'?

Other (please specify)
1	not that I know of but I didn't check our missing items for this survey	Nov 19, 2010 11:51 PM

6. Are users using the online version of IODP publications in preference to the

Comments
1	All formats.	Nov 19, 2010 9:49 PM
2	Our users invariably prefer online access; print is a distant second; CD and DVD are at the bottom of the heap in terms of usage.	Nov 19, 2010 10:46 PM
3	or so I imagine	Nov 19, 2010 11:51 PM
4	I don't know.	Nov 20, 2010 12:10 AM
5	Don't know	Nov 22, 2010 9:05 AM
6	This is a guess -- I don't know for certain, but most of our users prefer to go to an online site rather than use DVDs, unless it is significantly easier to download data from a DVD (faster, more secure, etc)	Dec 2, 2010 6:31 PM
7	Probably	Dec 2, 2010 7:03 PM

6. Are users using the online version of IODP publications in preference to the

Comments
8	I know that some people in the department are using IODP online exclusively, but others are using both the DVDs and onlien access.	Dec 2, 2010 8:40 PM
9	I would think that they would.	Dec 2, 2010 9:19 PM
10	I have not heard.	Dec 6, 2010 5:30 PM

7. If the IODP DVDs were discontinued, would they be missed?

Comments
1	Researchers who go on the cruises say that it's easier to use the DVDs on board ship, because there's not always internet available on board ship. If there were some online instructions on how to produce the contents of a DVD along with search software, etc, this might not be a problem anymore.	Nov 19, 2010 10:08 PM
2	CDs and DVDs are hard to manage in a library setting, maybe OK for personal use. Our users always look online first!	Nov 19, 2010 10:46 PM
3	I don't know. I'm not sure how much people use the online vs. the DVDs. My guess that most would use it online.	Nov 20, 2010 12:10 AM
4	Probably not, as long as the same materials are available online.	Dec 2, 2010 5:30 PM
5	Again, maybe -- each of the DVDs we have (no.301-319) was circulated once or twice since being added to the collection.	Dec 2, 2010 6:31 PM
6	But we could transition the users over to online	Dec 2, 2010 11:28 PM

8. If the IODP DVDs were discontinued, how much of an impact would this

Other (please specify)
1	As long as you make the data readily available online, I wouldn't anticipate much negative impact on users	Dec 2, 2010 6:31 PM
2	There are 3 faculty and their graduate students who are actively using the DVDs. While they are also accessing the IODP online, they find the DVDs better for some uses.	Dec 2, 2010 8:40 PM
